ABSTRACT This publication includes analysis and planning for a small (population 2,039 in 1960) town in the western edge of the rapidly industrializing Piedmont (central) portion of North Carolina. Emphasis is on housing needs, improvement of deterioration in the central business district, and recreational needs. The Thoroughfare Plan is also of major importance due to heavy through traffic on the US 321 highway which leads directly through the central business district. A unique feature of the publication is the Implementation Section which includes a listing by priority of specific actions that should be useful to local officials and citizen groups in putting the plan to immediate use and carrying it on to long-range action.
